MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS AND OFFERINGS

What does a membership in Partnership for Prevention offer?

Membership offers access to Partnership's unique networks across the health care, governmental, business, academic and NGO sectors, provides an entry point for collaboration on key health policy issues and opportunities, and brings together executive leaders to collectively drive change aimed at improving the health of every American.

What does Partnership do that benefits an employer?

Partnership works to:

- Produce publications on the efficacy of worksite health and community prevention programs. Through its Leading By Example (LBE) initiative – a highly respected peer to peer communication campaign targeted to CEOs – companies are featured in these materials and in Partnership's online and hard copy communications channels
- Engage the business community to optimize employee health by promoting greater interest in vaccinations
- Connect CEOs and prevention leaders in multiple sectors to find ways to prevent disease and promote health

What are the exclusive membership offerings?

Communication opportunities include:

- Social Media Connections: All members have the exclusive right to work with our communications staff to produce podcasts, blog posts for the Partnership web site, www.prevent.org, and webinars
- Member Voice News: Partnership is adding a full section to the member newsletter to highlight your company activities
- Congressional Prevention Caucus (CPC): Exclusive opportunity to provide input to Partnership staff on topics for CPC congressional briefings/presentations

What are the membership dues?

Members' annual contributions range from $2,750 – $11,000
